

The North Carolina Association for Research in Education (NCARE) has proudly served researchers and practitioners in North Carolina since 1974. We represent educational professionals in higher education, local school districts, research organizations, and the NC Department of Public Education. We are the state affiliate of AERA (American Educational Research Association).

We host an annual conference to showcase the research currently being conducted in our state. In addition to research presentations, we also provide workshops to support the research efforts in North Carolina. The winner of our conference Distinguished Paper Award is automatically on the program for the subsequent AERA conference. Our upcoming NCARE Conference will be held February 16-17, 2023.

NCARE is a self-supporting organization that relies on membership dues and conference registration fees to support our work. We are contacting organizations in North Carolina who represent the educational research community and share an interest in the efforts of our members and conference attendees to consider being an NCARE conference sponsor.
